

Fiber Optic Clip Coupler

Article Overview

A clip-on fiber optic coupler allows non-invasive light injection or detection in optical fibers without cutting or terminating the fiber.

Overview

Clip-on fiber optic couplers are designed to inject or detect light signals in optical fibers without affecting the mechanical integrity of the fiber. They are particularly useful when access to fiber ends is limited, such as in splice enclosures or intermediate points along a fiber span. These couplers are commonly used with optical talk sets, fiber tracing, and testing equipment like Optical Fiber Identifiers .

Key Features

- Non-invasive coupling: The fiber remains intact, avoiding damage or signal loss due to splicing or termination .
- Compatibility: Typically designed for singlemode fibers with coatings around 250 microns, though some models may support multimode fibers .
- Bi-directional operation: Many clip-on couplers allow both injection and detection of light signals.
- Ease of use: The clip mechanism allows quick attachment and removal, making them ideal for temporary testing or monitoring.

Common Models

- FOD5516: Used for injecting test tones or detecting signals in singlemode fibers w...
